February 27, 2022, Orlando, Florida. Republican Congressional Candidate in Florida, Manuel P. Asensio, has raised questions about former federal appellate judge, J. Michael Luttig's private unofficial role in former Vice President Mike Pence's decision to certify of the electoral votes in the 2020 Presidential Election.

In a statement release yesterday, Mr. Asensio published information about the inconsistencies in a heavily edited print and audio story based on a three-hour interview of former federal judge J. Michael Luttig by Ryan Lizza that Politico published on February 18, 2022 by Politico titled, "The Never Before Told Backstory of Pence's January 6th Argument."

The statement is part of Mr. Asensio's research into the reasons underlying Mr. Pence's completely wrong and entirely politic certification of 2020 electoral votes.

It is completely wrong because Mr. Pence could have naturally, honestly, and modestly without any uncertainty simply declined to certify the electoral votes and Congress could have and would have gone ahead in a matter-of-fact manner exactly as it did on January 29, 1877 without any elaborations.

It is entirely political because Mr. Pence made his decision based on the interest of Richard Cullen who in turn was working behind the scenes with Judge Luttig and former US Attorney General William P. Barr. Together, they convinced Mr. Pence that his decision would not betray President Donald J. Trump or Trump's political ideologies, or the Constitution based on their entirely on their political interest based on their beliefs about the Constitution and their loyalties not the facts or truth, the American people, the power of the office of the American presidency, or their feelings towards its occupant, President Trump.

The Lizzo stories, the audio and text, reveal that Judge Luttig and Mr. Cullen were in constant contact with Mr. Barr throughout the Trump administration.

However, it was Judge Luttig who revealed the extent of this group's disdain, disrespect, and disloyalty towards President Trump.

He does this with words in his Op-Ed published by The New York Times on February 14, 2021 titled "The Conservative Case for Avoiding a Repeat of Jan. 6." Here the Judge comes right out and call President Trump a liar for telling the simple truth, Mr. Pence could have declined to certify, and Congress could have done what the judges did not do because they did not want to do. Namely, tried the facts with the power of the American people in a legitimate open democratic process not a corrupt system of judges and lawyer in a closed autocratic court.

The Judge angrily shows his scorn, contempt, and self-righteous toward President Trump in a tape zoom call interview with labeled "A Conversation with Judge J. Michael Luttig." It took place on February 15, 2022 the day after the Times Op-Ed.

Alan Raul organized the call. He is an attorney and close friend of the Judge, Mr. Cullen, and Mr. Barr. On the call the Judge shows with visible anger his beliefs about what President Trump and his supporters are trying to do. The Judge does this to promote his scheme of aggregating ALL the power of the President and Congress have over constitutional presidential election disputes into the courts with a new law he is working on.

After Judge Luttig's seven meaningless tweets on the social media platform Twitter worked their way into Vice President Mike Pence's January 6, 2021 letter to Congress announcing his decision to certify the electoral votes, Judge Luttig received his payment from The Coca-Cola Company. The Judge has said that in did not have a job on January 5, 2021.

James Quincey, chairman and CEO of The Coca-Cola Company commented on his deal with Judge Luttig. Now Mr. Quincey and The Coca-Cola Company are declining to comment.

I have repeatedly contacted Mr. Rizzo and his editor, Mr. Raul, and other persons who interviewed Judge Luttig during these days asking them to get an explanation from Judge Luttig about the inconsistency between his story and the Coke announcement.
